

Deep Web Technologies Partner Program

Technology to Simplify Access to the Deep Web

Deep Web Technologies is aggressively seeking partners to leverage its platform, providing the following benefits:

The “next generation” search engine

Researchers and experts demand easy access to their important information sources. Now more than ever, it's critical to provide immediate access to the very best information, and leave no doubt that no stone was unturned. Deep Web Technologies' integrated federated search is the future of search: It enables organizations to provide one interface – one search – for its users to all the important information sources. Deep Web Technologies provides superior results through a powerful ranking engine, incremental results for faster response times, scalable technology to fit in any sized organization, and flexibility.

A robust Web Services based API

Deep Web Technologies' platform is designed around open-systems to custom-fit into existing platforms and technologies. Regardless of what technology you provide to your customers, Deep Web Technologies' can plug right in, giving access to its powerful features through a robust set of Web Services based APIs. If your company provides technology, our APIs enable you to quickly integrate federated search for a very robust market offering.

Centralized administration, reports and statistics

Our administration takes the difficulty out of managing Deep Web Technologies' offerings, as well as greatly simplifies implementation and issue handling. Furthermore, our reports and statistics help you assess your customer activity and help your customers assess their information sources: identifying the most valuable, the most problematic and the least used.

Flexible deployments

We're flexible, and can devise around you or your clients' needs. Our products can sit in our data center or yours. We can license our technology so it can sit behind your customer's firewall, or offer it as a Software-as-a-Service (SaaS). We can manage any and all aspects of the implementation, in a manner that fits your or your clients' needs.

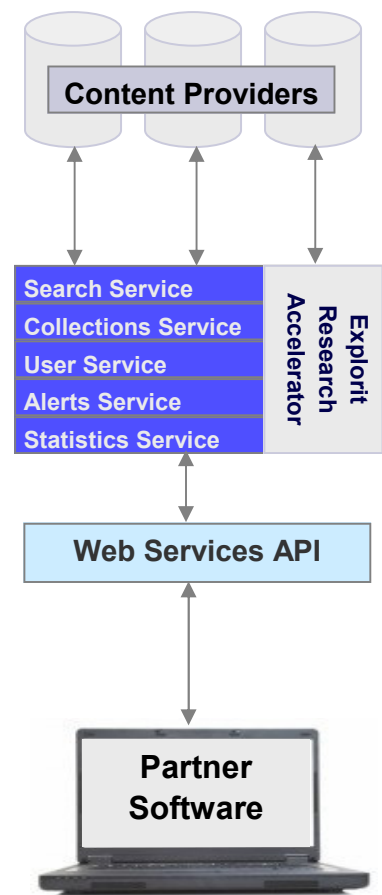

Outstanding support and customer service

We offer the fastest response times in the industry. When a particular information source stops working, we often recognize the problem and fix it before our clients do. We can provide first-level or second-level support, depending on the particulars of your business.

Flexible financial incentives and options

After all, it's about your business. How can we help? Whether you're interested in flat-rate or tiered pricing, revenue sharing or some other business model. Deep Web Technologies will custom-craft a particular partnership agreement to best meet the needs of your business.
